

I strongly urge that the June 2 vote by the FCC in respect to broadcast ownership be delayed until the Commission has launched an aggressive campaign to openly and fully seek and review public comment. The rules have not been released to the public at this time: I do not know exactly what will be proposed but it appears that restrictions that prevent one corporation from owning too many broadcast outlets in one market will be relaxed to some degree. The ownership issue is too complex and significant to be rushed to a vote without an unusually proactive effort to ensure that there is robust debate and full transparency in the decision-making process. Thank you.
